

Believes
Father
Killed

MISS CATHERINE MCBRIEN

Daughter of dead watchman in automobile saleroom declares her father was killed and did not die of an accident. Police are investigating.

"Father did not die of an accident. He was killed. Of that I am certain and I shall never rest until the police apprehend his slayer."

So declared Catherine McBrien today to the Boston American by the editor of her dead father, whose mutilated body was found in the elevator pit of the C. E. Fay automobile building at No. 740 Commonwealth avenue.

Police believe McBrien may have been killed by bandits. An investigation was started today.

MAY HAVE BEEN BEATEN.

McBrien was a once-a-week night watchman in the employ of the Fay company. It is possible he may have fallen into the elevator well, but police say his body was horribly mangled, suggesting he may have been beaten to death.

The body was discovered by two salesmen, Harland Roycroft, and Earl Collins of Arlington, when they

TO THE PUBLIC

The situation regarding the threatened strike of telephone operators, as we see it Sunday night, is as follows:

In most of our central offices little or no attention will be paid to the strike order and service on Tuesday will be practically normal.

In some places we may have to ask the public to limit service requirements to important calls.

In three or four places we may have to ask the public to refrain from making any but emergency calls for the time being. Calls of this character—for police, fire departments, hospitals, doctors and nurses—we expect to be able to handle notwithstanding the effort of a few leaders to put the public wholly at their mercy.

Our operators, as a rule, have an instinctive loyalty to the service. During Telephone Week, when over 250,000 people visited our central offices, the operators expressed this spirit of loyalty in the words, "Our Slogan—Service First."

We believe this spirit still exists and confidently rely upon it, together with the fact that the great body of our operators are out of sympathy with the present attempt to disrupt service, to influence all but a small minority to stick to their posts.

LAW, SAYS HARDING

Denver, June 25.—President Harding served notice in an address here today that the Federal government was determined to enforce the prohibition law even should the burden of enforcement continue to be increasingly thrown upon it by the State.

He also voiced the conviction not only the prohibition amendment will not be repealed, but that whatever changes may be made in the Volstead Act "will represent the sincere purpose of effective enforcement, rather than moderation of the general policy."

Striking straight out at those who violate the law, the President said the issue was fast coming to be recognized not as one between the "wets" and "drys" but as one of whether the laws of "this country can be and will be enforced."

"So far as the Federal government is concerned," he said, "and I am very sure also so far as concerns the

Special Police Details Are Announced for the Expected Walkout Tomorrow

Believing a strike tomorrow is inevitable, the two factions of telephone operators, and the telephone company today made final preparations for the struggle.

Leaders of both unions issued calls for mass meetings tonight, at which arrangements will be perfected for picketing all exchanges in Greater Boston.

Fearing clashes between the warring factions, company officials hired a number of Harvard and other men to act as peace officers.

PAUL PAPPAS IN DEATH HOUSE FIFTH TIME

For the fifth time since he was convicted of the murder of Mrs. Alice Argenta in a rooming house on Columbus avenue in 1919, Paul Pappas, 27, was taken to the death house in the State prison at Charlestown. Pending the decision of the Supreme Court on the most recent of his appeals, taken in 1921, Pappas, the prisoner, was kept at Cherry Hill. Today, however, Deputy Warden James L. Hoyt and Prison Officer Tom Clifton, he was removed from there to Cell No. 1 in the death house. This cell is within ten feet of the electric chair.

A Ball and Chain Wife
Spirits Don't Flirt
40,000,000 in a Teaspoon
What Court? Ours?
Their?

By Arthur Brisbane

YOU COULD write an interesting column daily about things that women do and things done to them. One Detroit lady gets a divorce by proving that her husband called her "his ball and chain."

He said a wife was like a ball and chain fastened to a man's leg. And that's exactly what a wife should be like with some men, for the sake of the children.

Marriage originated as a device to make a man responsible for his family, to keep him from running away and neglecting the children.

ANOTHER interesting lady in the news is Miss Muriel McCormick. The reporter's dramatic story shows the young granddaughter of John D. Rockefeller free of all earthly entanglements, but deeply in love with the spirit of a young man killed in France, whom she never saw in life.

She and the young man's mother visit his grave regularly and together they go to apocryphic mediums for news of him. That is an ideal arrangement.

Spirits never disappoint you, and never look at any other girl. It would do them no good, up in ecstasies land.

SHOULD the young man obey the medium and come down he would learn to his satisfaction that he died not in vain.

He gave his life for his country, and his father and mother gave in his memory a five hundred thousand dollar dormitory to Harvard University, a campus on the lake shore to Northwestern University, and a terrace to the Chicago Art Institute. Buried in the soil in which good deeds grow.

WHAT is the population of this earth? If you mean human beings, one billion six hundred millions would be about the right answer.

If you include all living beings in "population," the figures become fantastic. Government investigation in England show that a teaspoonful of soil contains more than forty million living creatures. These are "organisms" that live, reproduce their kind, and have consciousness.

THE difference between their consciousness and ours is a difference in power, something like the difference between the waterfall from a rain spout and the fall of Niagara.

When Niagara's water goes back to the ocean, and is lifted by the sun and dropped in rain, drops that were Niagara may change to find themselves new drops, or water in the gutter, or tears.

WHAT BECOMES of us, when the aggregation of consciousness looked up in our skulls goes back to the ocean whence it came?

It returns here, does it return inside of one ivory skull, or scattered among a million millions of those "soil organisms"? You would be grateful for an answer to that.

THERE is nothing ridiculous to suggest that the power of consciousness of the million million "organisms" of the soil might be combined into a thinking power equal to that of Newton. One drop of water might tingle sufficiently, and reflect to itself five hundred feet, would have a thousand times the power of Niagara.

ONE PRACTICAL word. Fathers and mothers look after your children that go barefoot. Remember that the "forty million organisms" in a teaspoonful of earth may include hook worms and lockjaw germs.

Don't let children play barefoot in filthy mud puddles, or go barefoot when the skin is cracked or cut, exposing the pores to the germs.

Parents are better than bare feet in summer and just as good for health—in fact, on that point, I shall get satisfaction from

Armed Guards Protect Geraldine Farrar in New Hampshire; Miss Larimore to Start Suit

North Hampton, N. H., June 25.—Geraldine Farrar has barricaded herself in her mansion here, the old home of the Pittsburgh Thaw, and refuses to see anyone. Armed guards pace the sides of her house and with eagle eyes enforce the privacy of the actress.

The mysterious precautionary measure of the famous singer is puzzling townpeople. Whether she fears some hidden enemy or is merely at odds with some of her admirers, only she knows.

Miss Farrar was divorced from her husband, N. H. Mansford, in New York. The report of the divorce was made public Sunday.

FOUND SHE HAD WED A MONOCLE

Baroness Tella, Former Providence Girl and Italian Nobleman Separated

New York, June 25.—"I found after my marriage I had married merely a monocle and a walking stick," said Baroness Tella, former Providence girl and Italian nobleman, who arrived in New York on the Conte Verdi.

Before her marriage she was Jeanne Taylor of Providence, R. I. The baroness recently went to Rome with the expressed intention of divorcing her husband, whose father is vice president of the Italian senate and a prominent cabinet officer.

But she dropped proceedings after her arrival, explaining that while she didn't care particularly for her husband, she did care a great deal for her husband's mother.

She added that both she and her husband were Catholics and that they would have made the obtaining of a divorce very difficult.

Ward was indicted on a charge of first degree murder. Ward admitted the killing, saying Peters and a girl of his acquaintance had threatened him.

Ward was admitted to bail and in the indictment was disclosed. On the plea of Mrs. Jean Peters of Haverhill, mother of the slain man, Governor Smith ordered an investigation of the case and directed Attorney General Sherman to call an extraordinary Grand Jury.

It was expected a bitter battle would develop early in the hearing when the State attempts to prove the world's number one playboy was young Ward to his father, George B. Ward, who was in Europe at the time of the killing.

Should the State attempt to show these messages to the grand jury, Ward attorneys, it is understood, will seek an injunction, or trying their fight to the Court of Appeals.

MISS ADAMS TO MARRY IN CONCORD

She is Descendant of Two Presidents; He is Son of Noted N. Y. Banker

"Love laughs at Gold; Cupid dignifies to end at Mammon." This old aphorism well describes the romance which comes to a happy culmination tomorrow, when Catherine Adams, Boston and Concord society girl, weds Henry Sturges Morgan, youngest son of the J. Pierpont Morgans of New York.

For Miss Adams, though one of a family of great wealth, is at one of the poorest of the poor in the social column. While a social debutante at Harvard young Morgan met Catherine Adams at a fraternity house at one of the best of the best.

Twenty Catherine Adams, however, captured the imagination of the young man. Morgan, who was one of the best of the best, was one of the best of the best.

BANKER MORGAN'S MAN OUSTED

DOMINATED TRUSTEES' MEETING

Three More of the Faculty Resign as Result of the College Upset

J. P. Morgan is the man responsible for getting rid of Prof. Alexander Melikjeian, who resigned from Amherst, according to a storm of indignation among the students and resulted in thirteen of them refusing to take degrees.

It is one of these students, Prof. H. Taylor, Jr., an honor man who earned the Cum Laude degree, who charges that the head of the trustees financial house in this world was responsible for ousting the most beloved Amherst ever. Prof. Morgan did not object to the degree. It was Melikjeian to whom he refers, to accept his degree. It was Melikjeian of the J. P. Morgan office, chairman of the finance and executive committees of the Amherst board of trustees.

In a book called "The Game Plan," by the student, Melikjeian, who was the principal Prof. Hamilton, American universities, body and soul. When Harvard awarded honorary degrees last week, Melikjeian went to J. P. Morgan himself and told him that Morgan was the man who had caused the Amherst upset. Morgan's answer was: "You are wrong."

DOMINATED BY MORGAN. The dominating factor resulting in the ousting of Professor Melikjeian was Mr. Morgan of the J. P. Morgan office. He is chairman of the finance and executive committees of the board of trustees of Amherst.

"When he decided that Mr. Melikjeian did not possess the necessary qualifications for executive control of a college, Mr. Melikjeian's educational venture was lost. As a result, Amherst is due for a period of decline that nothing can stop. The trustees have served notice that if a president is intellectually too independent, too ambitious, he will be dropped. Amherst has made a blunder which is terribly costly."

The movement of protest in the faculty of Amherst over the ousting of Professor Melikjeian received further impetus today when three more members of the faculty announced their resignations. Three already had resigned, and the prospect is that still others of the "militant minority" who side with Mr. Melikjeian will walk out in the near future.

Those who resigned today were Albert Parker Finch, professor of the History of Religion and Biblical Literature, Walter W. Stewart, professor of Economics, and Howard P. Hines, organist and choir-master and instructor in music.

WERE "MILITANT" LEADERS. Those who had previously resigned were Walter H. Hamilton, Olds professor of Economics; John M. Gage, associate professor of Political Science, and Walter Agard, associate professor of Greek.

Up to the University of Minnesota and Prof. Agard to St. John's College at Annapolis. The others have not made known their plans for the future.

PAPPAS IS NOT DISCOURAGED, FEENEY SAYS

Paul Pappas, now awaiting death sentence, execution in the Charlestown section of the Charlestown State prison for the murder of Alice A. Bennett, Columbus avenue lodging housekeeper, was told yesterday that the full bench of the Supreme Court had denied the exceptions which were filed by his attorney, John P. Feeney. Attorney Feeney stated that he more about Pappas being discouraged were false.

"He is not on the verge of a nervous breakdown, for I talked with him yesterday afternoon for more than a half hour, and he conversed in an easy manner, at this time, disclose himself."

Navy Men to Learn Radio Formulas While They Sleep

Washington, June 25.—Learn while you sleep will be the routine advertisement of up to date educational institutions if the experiments now being conducted by the navy produce results commensurate with the hopes of some of its instructors.

According to an official announcement embargo radio operators at the Pensacola, Fla., air station are to be taught the intricacies of wireless after they have been told in their regulation rote. Specially designed receiving sets will be strapped in the ears of the sleepers, and throughout the stilly watches of the night data and formulas will be heard, pushed and pounded into more or less receptive brains, at least so the announcement states.

BAY STATE WIFE FOUND DEAD IN NEW YORK

New York, June 25.—The police are investigating the mysterious death of Mrs. Mary Mary, formerly of Lawrence, Mass., who was found dead in her room at No. 508 West Eleventh street, by her landlady, Mrs. Mary Dupuis.

Mrs. Dupuis told the police that Mrs. Mary had been murdered. Investigation by Medical Examiner Charles F. Norris and Captain Arthur F. Carey, head of the homicide squad, failed to disclose the cause of death.

It was said there were evidences of violence on the body, although death may have been due to other causes. The body was removed to the morgue, where an autopsy will be performed.

MEIKLEJOHN AS AMHERST'S HEAD

PAYGROUND IN PLOT TO BRIBE SOMERVILLE PROSECUTOR EXPOSED

New York, June 25.—Julius C. Rabner, bankrupt broker, who has pleaded guilty to hypochondria of a customer's securities, made two startling admissions in an amazing interview.

First he said that there were messages concerning an attempted bribery carried between Assistant District Attorney William E. McKenna and himself.

PROMISES LENIENCY. Then he added that he had been promised a sentence of only nine months' imprisonment if he would plead guilty and give the district attorney such information as would help in further prosecution of racketeers.

His first statement was startling in that it was a direct contradiction of the statements of which McKenna had told them he had been offered "a pot of gold" to lay down on the State in its book-keeping prosecutions.

SENTENCES GAUGED. The second admission was considered significant in view of the fact that on the eve of the sentencing of Edward J. Kelly and Frank M. Gier, heads of the defunct firm of R. M. Fuller & Company, confessed racketeers and beneficiaries of the friendly acts of Thomas F. Foley, Tammany leader, a newspaper here was enabled to publish a prediction that they would receive mild terms—a prediction that became fact this court day.

Liverpool, June 25 (AP).—Katie Douglas Wiggins, the American novelist, is under treatment in a nursing home here, having been taken seriously ill. She was to have attended the annual conference of the Dickens Fellowship as a delegate from New York.

6,000 IN PERIL AS SHIP NEARLY UPSSETS
New York, June 25.—The steamer Hendrick Hudson ran into a violent electrical storm off Indian Point on her way from Bear Mountain to New York. Between 8:00 and 8:30 were on board. Those on the weather side scrambled to escape the rain and several were slightly hurt in the rush.

To Wed Merchant

MISS LILLIAN HALLMARK

A wedding of considerable importance in social circles of Brookline, Mass., and Brooklyn, New York, will take place at the Hotel Astor in New York on June 26th, when Lillian Hallmark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hallmark of Brooklyn, New York, is to be married to Mr. Abner Cohen of Brookline, Mass., a prominent furniture merchant of Boston.

Miss Hallmark is a graduate of the Sargent School of Cambridge, where during the past few years she has enjoyed great popularity. Miss Hallmark has also been very prominent in social service activities during her school years.

On July 4th the couple will sail for an extended honeymoon trip to Europe, having booked passage on the Leviathan's maiden trip.

Detroit.—Twelve persons were drowned in the rivers and lakes of Michigan. The official temperature here was 54.

MRS. GARLAND SHYS AT LIFE ON LOVE FARM

North Carver, June 25.—The possibility of seeing his wife among his notes at "April Farm" has faded into a dim and fading hope for Charles Garland, according to his co-workers here. Mrs. Garland, who also leaves the Phillips House in Boston, will journey to the above cottage at Bowdoin's 8:30, where her two little daughters are staying.

Garland, following the birth of his son two weeks ago, had announced he hoped that he would be able to prevail upon his wife to share his roof at the retreat, and for a time he was so optimistic that he ordered a new hen coop to accommodate the increase in the colony. Mrs. Garland, in spite of his pleading, refused to give him a definite "yes." Garland, it appears, failed to convince her on the advisability or of the attractiveness of living in the company of his feminine mates.

There is no prospect of the males forsaking the famed love camp. In fact, Garland is planning to enlarge it.

60, BUT HE MUST STAY IN PRISON

Has Never Seen Trolley Car, Airplane or Radio, and the Auto is Unknown to Him

Wethersfield, Ct., June 25.—For more than 44 years Frank Bassett of Bridgeport has lived within the walls of Connecticut's State Prison here, serving a life sentence for his part in slaying one "Stuttering Jack," a waterside character of Bridgeport, back in 1878.

For the forty-fourth time in his prison life Bassett was refused parole or parole when the State Board of Pardons held its annual meeting and Bassett went back to serve out his sentence, showing plainly that age is now upon him in his 83rd year.

Bassett alone of the prison inmates has never seen a trolley car, airplane and radio and automobiles are to him but mere names, but still he keeps for the day to come when he will step out to see all these modern wonders, and as long as the result of life remains in him he expects to continue to work freedom.

The doors of the prison have closed upon Bassett on March 1, 1923. He had been found guilty of murdering "Stuttering Jack" in what was then the village of Bridgeport, of carrying the body in a trunk to Millers marsh and burying it in mud, but he forgot to get rid of the trunk that contained the body, and a shillie tin was the chief sign of the work of justice.

Death long ago claimed Bassett's accomplice in the crime, and he now sits here in his cell, and he has been punished enough for what he did.

LOSES TWO TOES IN LYNN ELEVATOR

Andrew Horne of Charlotte road, Bangor, lost two toes as the result of an elevator accident in Lynn today. His foot was caught between the elevator and a floor in the J. R. HAMPTON BEACH HOTEL GOES IN $100,000 FIRE

Hampton Beach, N. H., June 25.—Five destroyed a garage, twenty two automobiles, a hotel and two cottages, scorched two other dwellings, and drove 25 persons from their beds to the streets. Damage is estimated at more than $100,000.

The fire started in the Bristol Garage, owned by Mrs. Leora M. Bristol, which was burned to the ground with its contents, and spread to the two cottages, also owned by Mrs. Bristol, and to the Hotel Wilbert.

Two firemen, Atwood Rowe and William White, were cut about the hands by falling glass.

Fireproof shutters, which entirely covered the hotel, acted as a fire wall, protecting the rest of the beach.

Burning embers from the garage leaped across the street to a cottage owned by Mrs. Mary R. Drummond of Lawrence and occupied by herself and nine others. The cottage of William Owens of Haverhill was also damaged.

It was assumed from Haverhill, Newburyport, Amesbury, Exeter and Portsmouth. Chief Alexander Brown of the local department forced a general conflagration.

MISS CROKE BRIDE OF WINSTON

In the presence of a number of persons prominent in State, city and county, Miss Florence Mary Croke, daughter of Laurence Croke, West Somerville, today became the bride of Representative Thomas A. Winston of Essex.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. John R. McCool, who was also celebrant of the nuptial mass that followed.

Miss Madeline C. Croke, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid and Bernard Winston, brother of the groom, best man. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, John J. Croke.

A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents, No. 348 Summer street, in the House of Representatives.

The groom is the son of Mrs. Katherine Winston of No. 333 Hamilton street, East Boston. He represented Ward 1 in the House of Representatives in 1919-1921, and is now serving a two-year term from that district. He was a well known amateur baseball player and an all-round athlete.

The bride is a graduate of the Cambridge Commercial College, English High School and was employed by the Boston & Maine railroad.

JURY DISAGREES IN LARSEN FIRE CASE

New York, June 25.—A Supreme Court jury today reported a disagreement in the suit of the Commercial Union Assurance Company, Ltd., to recover from John M. Larsen, named airplane pilot, and his insurer, $15,000 paid him on a policy after a fire, later declared incendiary, had destroyed his airplane plant on Long Island.

Larsen, alleged to have hired an employee to fire the plant, was found that the charges were a fraud to wreck his reputation. The jury said informally they had typed 10 to 1 in favor of Larsen.

MRS. FRANK MCCANN AND CHILDREN

TO ENFORCE DRY LAW-HARDING

Very great majority of the State governments and the local governments, will be enforced. A gratifying, indeed it may fairly be said an amazing, progress has been made in the last few years toward better enforcement.

While Mr. Harlan made no direct reference to the situation in New York State, he did say that "the spectacle of a State sullying its name by allowing its national sovereignty to take over an important part of its power to enforce the law is a disgraceful thing."

The President declared that a clash with State rights, in Washington that some States having prohibition enforcement codes, and even some which successfully enforced "dry" laws before national prohibitions, are "disposed to abdicate their own police authority in this matter and to turn over the burden of prohibition enforcement to the Federal authorities."

"Prohibition," he said, "is largely due to a misconceived notion, too widely entertained, that the Federal government has actually taken over the real responsibility. The fact is quite the contrary. The Federal government is not equipped with the instrumentalities to make enforcement locally effective. It does not maintain either a police or judicial establishment adequate to or designated for such a task.

"If the burden of enforcement shall continue to be increasingly thrown upon the Federal government, it will be necessary, at large expense, to create a federal police authority which in time will inevitably come to be regarded as an intrusion upon and interference with the right of local authority to manage local concerns."

"The possibilities of disaster in such a situation hardly need to be suggested. Yet it is something that we must recognize as among the necessities in this situation."

DIFFICULT STAGE

"What I am saying must not be construed as indicating any relaxation of the national government's purpose to do its full duty in this matter. I have no doubt that if the burden is cast, in proper proportion, upon the national authority the Federal government will, not only under this administration, but under whatever others may come in the future, assume and discharge the full obligation."

"I am pointing out that this ought not to be made necessary. The national policy ought to be supported by the public opinion and the administrative machinery of the whole country. For myself, I am confident that we are now passing through the most difficult stage of this matter, and that as time passes there will be a more and more willing acceptance by authorities everywhere of the unshakable obligation of law enforcement."

"It was very generally believed that the adoption of the constitutional amendment would take the question out of our politics. Therefore it has not done so, though I venture to predict that neither of the parties will see the time, with the lives of any who are now voting citizens, when it will declare openly, for the support of the eighteenth amendment."

The effect that Ruth was injured in an automobile accident. Another story was to the effect that the home run king had kicked over the fence and come to a week-end party.

Ruth has not been seen or heard from by any members of the New York Yankees since he supposedly started for New Haven early Sunday morning. The Yankees were looking to play an exhibition game in that city.

Ten thousand persons turned out for the game. Most of them did so chiefly to see Ruth in action. When the Sultan of Swat failed to put in an appearance, the fans demanded their money back. Of course they didn't get it.

Dame Rumor carried a report into New Haven to the effect that Ruth was injured in an auto crash. The only member of the Yankees who had been in the city was Babe Ruth's bodyguard. He was more likely to have been in the city swimming hole back of the barn.

Ruth had failed to report to Bugdine up to noon today.

The Yankee leader didn't appear worried over Ruth's physical condition. He was more concerned over the fiasco at New Haven.

Meanwhile from New York came word that Colonel August, center of the Yankees, would ask Babe to do a little explaining.

At Babe Ruth's Seabury farm it was stated that the Bambino had not been seen for some time.

WHERE FLAMES STARTED

Fire, discovered in the Bristol garage directly above at Hampton Beach, N. H., spread to two cottages to the left and to Hotel Wilbert of which only the walls remain standing. They are shown to the rear. In the garage were twenty-two autos which were totally destroyed. Help was called from five communities and this, with the fireproof shutters on the hotel, prevented a more extensive conflagration.

London, June 25 (AP)—Stanley Baldwin, the Prime Minister, said in the House of Commons today that there was no ground for protesting British customs seals were broken within United States territorial waters by officials of the United States.

His statement was in answer to a question whether Great Britain recognized America's right to break the seals on liquor aboard ships.

The Suffren was more heavily laden. She brought from Havre in addition to a slight stock marked "medicinal supplies," 1,161 bottles of wine, 221 bottles of champagne, 25 bottles of gin, 18 bottles of rum and nine bottles of whiskey.

The stock was under French government seal.

Surveyor of the Port Whittle announced that the United States government would release the ship Saturday, in the case of the British, and seize excess liquor as fast as it came.

Customs men shortly before noon began removing the seized liquor stores from the Bremergar.

GUARD RUM SHIP SKIPPER FROM UNPAID CREW

Halifax, N. S., June 25.—Returned from a visit of three months off the New Jersey coast, where she claims to have landed a cargo of 4,500 cases of liquor, the freighter Strandhill has been boarded by a squad of Halifax police to protect her master, Captain H. K. Wilson.

From the crew which is not wholly satisfied with the venture.

No pay and the short rations consequent upon the long wait to break through the U. S. Coast Guard patrol caused the ire of the crew.

In returning here after nearly three months on "rum row," the crew refused to work and became so threatening that Captain Wilson said he was forced to lock himself in his cabin for a time.

Two More Liners in With Boze Aboard

New York, June 25 (AP)—Two more "wet" liners steamed into port today while government officials were preparing to move on six other vessels which had docked over the weekend with liquor transported over the three-mile limit in defiance of the Treasury Department's dry ruling. The latest arrivals were the Anchor Line's Titanica and the French liner's Arcturion.

The Titanica, from Glasgow, brought a relatively small store of liquor, a relatively small store of liquor, a relatively small store of liquor.

Seven dozen bottles of Scotch was the largest individual item. Eighty-nine bottles of assorted drinks made up the rest of the cache bearing British government seal.

HOME-BUILDING FORECAST BY COMEDIANS

Moore, Gallagher & Shean, whom you noticed them daily in the Boston American, have demonstrated that they are prophets.

Nearly a month ago—on May 25, to be exact—the tall, thin comedian and his short, pudgy pal, appeared the rent boys in a ditty which ran as follows:

Oh Mr. Gallagher, Oh Mr. Gallagher, Landlords are barring children nowadays.

Yes, if you want to be their god To enforce strict birth control. Every month they give the poor old rent a raise.

Oh Mr. Shean, Oh Mr. Shean, That's a policy that's shocking, cruel and mean.

I can readily foresee What the end is bound to be—NO MORE CHILDREN, MR. GALLAGHER!

NO MORE LANDLORDS, MR. SHEAN!

And the last section of the strip that day showed Moore, Gallagher and Shean standing at a building labeled "Municipal Apartments, Operated by the City."

G. and S. were prophets. For Mayor Curley has just announced that the City of Boston is going in to the home-building business. His announcement states that because of the shortage of houses suitable for families with children, the city will start construction on seventy-two two-family houses. Land in Dorchester has been selected for the experiment and a partial payment program plan has been arranged.

Perhaps Gallagher & Shean, in the daily strip in the Boston American, can effect other needed reforms.

Have you any ideas for the strip? What do you want Gallagher & Shean to sing about? If you have any notions, write a letter to Jo Swearingin, Editorial Department, Boston American, No. 50 Summer street, Boston, Mass.

The Dark Ages

The period dating from the invasion of France by Clovis, in 485, to the descent on Italy in 1449, by Charles VIII of France, is commonly called the Dark Ages. Learning and arts were neglected. The Renaissance followed.

THE WAYS OF A HUSBAND—By ANN Lisle

A Splendid Sequel to the Famous Story of Wedded Life, "When a Girl Marries"

HOW THE STORY STARTS

Jim and Anne find happiness again on a honeymoon spent in the apartment of Betty Winston, loaned for the occasion. They go to Dreamwood for a Sunday dinner with Jeanie and are met in the grounds by Rosa, who ignores Anne. Rosa advises the discharge of Mabel Stone to save the big salary. This Anne recalls. Every helps Anne arrange her apartments and a dinner is given as a housewarming. Phoebe grows hysterical on receipt of Carlotta's wedding invitation. Betty speaks to Anne about Ralph's fondness for the latter.

By Ann Lisle

FOR the first time since our marriage I knew the bitterest feeling that can come to a wife. I was utterly ashamed of Jim.

It was after nine now. Virginia and Pat had managed to get in from Dreamwood. Why had Jim come?

"Do you mean to tell me Jim hasn't been here to congratulate me?" demanded Virginia angrily. "And in spite of Phoebe's?"

Then, at the mere question hadn't been enough, she added: "There's been time for Pat and me to get in from the country. You've been here good enough to know how long Anne. And with our Phoebe's mother and a wee, four-hour-old baby in the next room, Jim hasn't been here!"

I felt as if the living room of Jim's apartment were a torture chamber. I looked around it wondering how I managed to offer some explanation. To apologize for Jim now, of all things, was a humiliating and even hopeless task.

"He'll be here any minute—I see him sleeping," I said. Then seeing from Virginia's glaring eyes that more was needed, I lied out.

"I left a note telling Jim Phoebe's baby had come. He'll be here as soon as he wakes up and finds it."

Then the telephone rang. It had a familiar ring, that wasn't enough for Virginia. She looked to the instrument and took up the receiver.

"Hello—Hello," she said. "And when I've finished the call I'll get the manager's office and tell me we don't want incoming calls today. No disturbances for Phoebe's."

Hello—Hello. Yes, this is Virginia.

She talked so long that we could hear her voice if we'd tried. And with the sense of intrusion felt when one enters the same room, we began to feel that the manager's office was not so far away.

After a few minutes Virginia turned from the telephone and, putting her hand over her mouth, said:

An Unhappy Wife

"It's Jim, Anne. So sweet of him to call."

Stung by the note of wifely reproach in her voice, I went to the telephone. But as Virginia handed me the receiver she asked me to tell her the baby's sex.

"You're a darling! A poor lie—but a darling."

I smiled at her in amazement, and then putting my lips close to the telephone mouthpiece, I said:

"Jim, this is Anne. Where are you?"

"Where should I be? I've asked terribly. I've asked and had to come straight to the office. I'll be over to see the proud parents this afternoon. And I'll dinner. Have my flowers come?"

"No. I thought you'd come!" I murmured unhappily.

"Too many in that little apartment as it is," Jim replied curtly. "I want some flowers which will trim up the place. Hug Neal for me, and tell him that I'd have around, but I had some things to tend to for you so you get your tickets and reservations all right. You leave after tea."

"Jim! I can't! I tried, my voice rising in spite of me. 'I won't be allowed to see Phoebe for a day or two most likely, and anyway I wouldn't leave town for the world.' Until she's up and about."

"Calamity Jane!" laughed Jim. "I don't see how you're needed."

"Corn's Blue-jay"

with doctors and nurses and Jeanie and Neal and the rest of us around. And this vacation is coming to you."

"No now," I protested. "I couldn't."

"Well, you aren't so darn gracious about my stopping to get your tickets and letting you have all the money of the family."

"You might say a word of thanks. I'm sure not every body would have been so wholeheartedly devoted to you—especially under the circumstances."

"Oh—thank you, thank you," I muttered automatically, forced to control my annoyance and disappointment. I had to protect Jim from the rest of the family. So I couldn't insist that he ought to regard coming to Neal's as far more important than a torture chamber.

I looked around it wondering how I managed to offer some explanation. To apologize for Jim now, of all things, was a humiliating and even hopeless task.

"He'll be here any minute—I see him sleeping," I said. Then seeing from Virginia's glaring eyes that more was needed, I lied out.

It Began With Eve

Copyright, 1923, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

DOWN through the ages and up through the years—from the first faint flush of dawn in the Garden of Eden—runs the line of love. Straight and true, life and perfect, it marches like life itself—indeed, it is the very soul of life—into the hearts of ever-man and maid who truly love each other.

The latest lovers are the direct descendants of the first lovers. Behind them stand all those who have lived and loved through the centuries. Beaming upon them, the lovers of the ages give their benediction to this newest, strongest bond of life.

It begins with Eve—and love, true love, will never end!—POPPI

BEST PATTERNS 10c.

YOUR CHOICE OF LATEST STYLES

The Boston American offers today more of its new and stylish dress patterns at a price never before equalled elsewhere. It will cost from 15c to $1 to duplicate these patterns anywhere else. Orders MUST be on OFFICIAL COUPON.

A MODEL FOR SERVICE AND PROTECTION

4163. This "face" to make dress model is nice in unbleached muslin with facings of contrasting material, or in gingham, chin or percale. The side seams are free below the hips but if preferred may be closed their entire length.

The pattern is cut in four sizes: Small, 34 1/2; medium, 35 1/2; large, 42 1/2; extra large, 44 1/2 inches bust measure. A medium size requires 1 1/2 yards of 37-inch material.

A PRACTICAL APRON STYLE.

4058. The apron affords good protection to your housekeeper. It is easy to develop and to launder. It slips over the head, but may be made adjustable at the skirt portion. Dotted percale in white and blue, with binding of blue material is here shown. This is a good model for cretonne or gingham.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: small, medium, large and extra large. A medium size requires 2 1/2 yards of 27 inch material.

WHO SAID IT AND WHERE

"That bald old cheat, Time," Thus the poet, Ben Jonson, speaks of the old man with the scythe in "The Paster."

"Seven cities warred for Homer being dead," Who living had no need to shroud his head."

This was written by Thomas Heywood in his "Hierarchie of the Blessed Angles."

"Naught is so sweet as Melancholy," This was written by Burton in his "Anatomy of Melancholy," but not many will believe him.

"The wisest folk in Europe," This was the epithet applied to King James I. of England by Du de Bully, the noted French statesman.

"We sing the Spanish King's heart," Proclaimed Sir Francis Drake after destroying Spanish ships in the Gulf of Mexico, April 17, 1572.

"By their fruits ye shall know them," Every seedling gift should be acknowledged in a personal note, written by the bride-to-be before the wedding.

YOUR BEAUTY

A NEW SERIES OF PRACTICAL VALUE

By Maria Jeriza, The Famous Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company and One of the Most Beautiful Women of the Day.

AMONG the valuable beauty aids easily available to most of us is buttermilk. Indeed, a long list of good lotions, creams and ointments might be taken from the contents of the average kitchen.

There are cucumbers, lemons, oranges, milk, olive oil, lettuce, turnip, onion, soda, strawberries, honey, grapefruit, eggs, but water, ice, and last, but not least, buttermilk.

And that is but a partial list of the contents of the kitchen and of the contents of the refrigerator. Each of these is of special value as a beauty aid. It is of special value as a beauty aid. It is of special value as a beauty aid.

THE HE MAN

SHE FLEW WITH HIM TO THE HUNG

By George Agnew Chamberlain

THE "REVOR," said MacClosier in an off-hand way that was strongly softened and indelicately suggested. "I like you, I don't help liking you're so damned un-British. Not a whisper about a sanguinary failed raid."

You go right to my heart with a case of gin. I accept; bring it out."

"No," said Trevor, "I'll send it up. I'll have it waiting for you by the time you get back if you don't rot and fall apart on the way."

"There you go," said MacClosier pleasantly, "always cheerful, warm, welcome on your tongue." Then, with a change that was like a thunderclap, "Send it up, you dunghill bastard! Why the hell haven't you sent my music box?"

Against the Door

Andrea pressed her hands, her face and her whole body against the door. She was trembling slightly but she was not frightened, her intelligence was too busy. It seemed to her that she was going to be a part of what was going on outside. She felt that she had never thought it a mere battle of tongue.

MacClosier, as a mountain of brown and silver against which Trevor was deliberately, opposing all the moral weight of the old fighting ship. "But," he said, "More than that, she could now feel that the suppressed hatred had burst out in their words had come bodily into the open and that it was in a sense, labored and forced only because its intensity was beyond actual expression."

These two men were stripped to an unbelievable nakedness—raptor and broadsword, hugging, thrusting mightily for heart's blood and nothing else. In comparison with her own little struggle with Trevor, the encounter assumed the proportions of a meeting of elements.

"I didn't send it," said Trevor softly, "because I didn't want to remind myself you were still unbarred." He said, "It looks so clean—"

"It's a lie," interrupted MacClosier.

Red Hair and the Door

Between her and the door of Trevor's hut stood the door of Trevor's hut. She was a man in a woman's profile. She had seen in her quarter profile. She had seen in her quarter profile. She had seen in her quarter profile.

BAD DAY FOR RECKLESS

THIS is not a fortunate day according to astrology. The stars warn that care be exercised to avoid automobile accidents and possible drownings and other misfortunes encountered in pleasure seeking. Persons whose birthdate it is have the forecast of promotion. The temptation to lend money should be resisted. Children born on this day may meet with misfortune in life unless the tendency to rash impulse and erratic conduct is overcome by early training.

T. D. WHITNEY COMPANY

Linen Specialists Since 1796

The Linen Industry, Unlike Others, Depends Upon Old Established Traditions for Its Successful Recognition by the Public

Tradition

Progress

We are proud of our tradition and our years of success, marking us as the oldest linen house in America, and today the largest house specializing in linens in New England. In 1796 the store was operating under the name of John Fox on the second floor of a very modest building on Haymarket Row. The excellent quality of the linens carried made the standard, to which as the years roll by, we have always adhered, no matter what the market conditions.

Under the name of Palmer, Jacobs & Company the store moved to 143 Tremont street, then known as Bulfinch Row, and from there to Temple Place, where it extended through to West Street at a later date. At the latter locality it was run under the name of T. D. Whitney & Company, and in 1916 was incorporated under the name of T. D. Whitney Company.

We are dealing today with linen manufacturers across the water that we dealt with fifty years ago and we have forged ahead slowly but consistently until we have reached a point in progress where we are to open a new branch at 288 Boylston Street, still carrying on our inherent principles of giving to our customers the best quality merchandise for their money and a service that makes their shopping a pleasure rather than an irksome duty.

We feel that our progressive atmosphere should permeate even our advertising and that is why we are interested in connecting ourselves with the great Marcus Loew Festivities at Braves Field this summer. See our moving picture on the screen, week beginning July 2nd, featuring Ann Forrest and Mary MacLaren at one of our Old Time Spinning Wheels.

How Movie Stars Meet the Public "In Person"

By MARY AMUSEMENT

When the movie stars meet the public in person, it is usually in a very informal way. They are often seen at the Loew's theatres, where they are surrounded by a throng of fans and photographers. Hupmobile Dependability has made it preeminently the car of the Motion Picture Industry

ANN FOURNIER

MARY PICKFORD

MAKING a motion picture play requires the perfect coordination of the persons of the play, often multitudes, movie stars whose time is truly golden, hosts of technical people that their concerted effort may secure the single effect demanded by the director.

Every unit of equipment supporting this action must be elaborate and expensive, operation or not, and must be of unalloyed dependability, perfect in its promptness of service.

So it is inevitable that the Hupmobile should be chosen by more stars, directors and producers than any other.

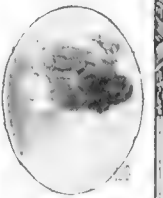

What other qualities could the people of the Motion Picture Industry prefer above the car's dependability of the Hupmobile.

Braves Field Project Expected to Make a Winning Team

Many of the best theatrical talents in the city are expected to make a winning team in the project to build a new stadium for the Boston Braves. The project, which is being headed by the city, is expected to be completed by the end of the year. The new stadium is to be built on the site of the old Braves field, which was destroyed by fire in 1919. The new stadium is to be a modern structure, with a seating capacity of 25,000. It is to be built of brick and concrete, and is to have a roof which will cover the entire seating area. The project is being financed by the city, and is expected to be a great success. The new stadium is to be a great asset to the city, and is expected to make the Braves a winning team.

'Shadow of Gallows' on Bridal Altar of Condemned

June 25.—The shadow of the gallows fell across the marriage altar at an indoor wedding which occurred here recently. The bride was a daughter of a man sentenced to death last week for the murder of a woman.

The wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents, who are well-known in the community. The bride and groom were both young people, and the ceremony was a simple one. The wedding was attended by a large number of guests, and the celebration was a happy one. The bride and groom are expected to be married in the fall.

Why 40 Movie Stars Selected Checker Cabs

During Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, Boston will be honored by a visit from 40 of America's Leading Film Stars. It is significant that they have chosen CHECKER CABS for their trips about town.

Movie stars are featured at the best theatres—they stop at the best hotels and would, naturally, select Boston's Best Cab Service.

They prefer CHECKER CABS because of the general knowledge that dainty apparel can be worn with safety in a CHECKER. CHECKER CABS are given an old-fashioned cleaning with soap and water every day. Our chauffeurs are courteous, careful drivers, and will do their part in rendering a service so worthwhile that we hope, so far as CHECKER CABS are concerned, their visit to Boston will be a most pleasant one.

Whatever Trains the Mind Improves the Man

But There Is Always a "But," Even in Chess

Copyright, 1922, Real Company

Edward Lasker, the extraordinary young chess player and sound thinker of Chicago, writes this in a letter to a friend:

A man I know, successful owner of a printing business, was a newsboy when he was young, and among the twenty or thirty boys of his acquaintance who earned their money selling papers, half a dozen spent their pastime in the Y. M. C. A. playing chess, while the others played dice or loafed. Every one of those who trained their minds by the more serious pastime are now making a good living in some business line or other. The rest are still selling newspapers on the street corners and some of the more ardent crapsshooters have landed in the penitentiary.

I was glad to hear of another concrete example which bears out my idea on the training qualities of chess.

Chess is a wonderful game, of course, by far the best ever invented to take the place of REAL ACTION AND WORK.

But of chess you may say what the French long said about travel. "Travel FORMS youth when it does not DEFORM it." And so chess forms the mind when it does not deform it. Travel merely for its own sake is WASTE. Travel for the inspiration it gives to the brain and to original thought is of the greatest benefit.

Similarly, chess for its own sake is a waste and dangerous to the mind, as are all substitutes for real action, from drugs to inherited wealth.

Chess is a wonderful thing when it is used as a mental relaxation and a new kind of concentration to rest paria of the brain concentrated on other things.

In regard to Mr. Lasker's interesting story of the boys, some of whom played chess at the Y. M. C. A. while others "played dice or loafed."

It is possible in a case of this kind to give to chess more credit, possibly, than it deserves.

Did the good little boys wind up as successful men BECAUSE they played chess? Or did they play CHESS because they were GOOD little boys and had in them the making of successful men?

The business of a man on this earth is to make the world better than he found it, to leave behind him something done, if only a chicken coop built, that was not done before.

For the man with unusual ability the task on this earth is to fight injustice and increase knowledge.

Any substitutes for the building of chicken coops or the increasing of knowledge are bad if carried to extremes, and beyond the point of recreation.

If a man could play ten thousand games of chess blindfolded, and win every one, that would not be the best of all worlds, for that wouldn't mean anything to the world's prosperity, unless it meant that man a more useful citizen—or inspired others to do better work.

The probability is that playing chess as well as that would make a man useless for everything else.

None the less we are obliged to Mr. Lasker for his interesting communication. And we join with others in urging him to establish a central chess club, combining with his mail lessons in chess the philosophical comment with which he accompanies his chess dissertations.

Those interested in such teaching of the wonderful old game may write to Mr. Edward Lasker, Room No. 306, Wrigley Building, Chicago, Ill.

Don't Blame Looking Glass

Change Your Face or Expression

Copyright, 1922, Real Company

Paris is somewhat excited about "indecencies on the stage." The government itself has decided to improve matters by making indecencies more complete. "The theatre of today would have made our grandfathers bow in shame," says one French authority. If that's exact, the situation must be bad.

One difficulty in all questions of morality, on the stage, in newspapers, or anywhere is this. The stage and newspapers are only MIRRORS, reflecting the public and the public taste. The Romans watched gladiators kill each other, or watched proud beasts devour gentle Christians, because that was what the people of Rome wanted to see. If there had been modern newspapers in Rome they'd have carried big pictures of the events.

And if it be true that ladies "clad only in a few square inches of veil" have started parading, first in a darkness, now in the calcium glare, among the orchestra seats, that should be STOPPED. But any real improvement must begin with the PEOPLE.

If you don't like what you see in the looking-glass, don't turn the looking-glass to the wall, but try to change your face, or, at least, your expression.

The stage, the newspaper, the church itself, are looking-glasses reflecting the humanity and the civilization of the hour.

Life's Beginning

It's Mysterious

Copyright, 1922, Real Company

Flowers can be put to sleep with anesthetics. A French scientist has demonstrated clearly that flowers suffer pain, and has proved that they can be inoculated and made sick with diseases from the bodies of human beings and restored to health by the use of anti-toxin, as human beings are restored in diphtheria and other diseases.

Where does consciousness, or what we call "life," really BEGIN? A sponge is alive; some believe that there is actually proof of life in the formation of crystals. There are plants that eat living animals, and some eat plants. It's a mysterious creation.

Street Signs

Editor Boston American: I notice that the city is installing a lot of white signs at street corners, denoting one-way streets. That is fine. But why not go a step further and put another sign at the corners telling people the names of the streets? Several readers of the paper have mentioned the lack of street signs before, and I think it is high time that Mayor Curley and the street commissioner "took a tumble." The city can always find money to put up signs telling us what we can't do. Spend a little

Needs Children's Clothes

Editor Helping Hand: I have six children, the oldest of which is nine. My husband has been sick a great deal for the last three years, and it makes it awfully hard for me to keep up in my bills. If some of the kind readers have any children's clothes they will be appreciated very much. The children are: four boys, eight, seven and six, and girls, nine and four. S. S. R. J. 2.

THE LITTLE BIRD ON THE WIRE SPEAKS HIS MIND

By Herbert Kaufman

"WELL, gossip, how are the two-legged folk behaving today?" cries the jay in the tree to the robin on the telegraph line.

"President Harding says that the League of Nations is as dead as slavery," answers the little bird that tells. "He avows a passion for justice over force, still harps on the World Court and is more convinced than ever that America can mingle interests with the devious affairs of stranger nations without relinquishing a single sovereign right."

"But pray, how may we be stopped, violators of civilization punished and treaty breakers compelled to abide by their agreements, except through a pooling of armies and navies?"

"These humans, so far as I have observed, only obey local government because they know that police and militia are ready to uphold constituted authority."

"Shall the decrees of a World Court be respected merely because morality insists upon it?"

"Will a power such as France permit majority opinion to decide its courses, demobilize regiments and junk aerial armadas on request? Fiddlesticks! Reason does not yet rule the earth."

"Should America carry its nose abroad and meddle promiscuously in universal business? These United States must use a club or lose face the first time common will is defied. If old baldy takes my advice he won't perch on international live wires."

The Commodore Turns in His Grave

"Here's a rich one from Paris. The statue which a priest stole from the Church of St. Saver and sold for 2,500 francs has certainly raised a rumpus."

"The antique dealer, who replaced the sacred image with a modern copy, disposed of his loot at a profit of 6,500 francs."

"The antiquarian, to whom it next passed, was satisfied to clean 10,000 francs on the transaction, and De Motte, so the cables say, is reputed to have dickered W. K. Vanderbilt into paying $80,000 for the same bit of carved and painted wood."

"Georgetown Observatory reports two faint seismic shocks. They'll probably trace one to the cemetery where the old commodore turned over in his grave at the tidings."

"Sight-seers did that tight-fisted railroad-building ferryman dream how his hard-earned railroad would be spent by succession."

Herr Stinnes Sucks Eggs

"They're after Stinnes. Germany accuses her colossus of deliberately depressing the mark to his own advantage. Quite a scheme! One takes over property at stipulated sums, signs a note, and between whiles reduces the obligation to a fraction by pounding down the money market."

"Mincus, one of his directors, testifies that the miracle man has been buying 450,000 English pounds sterling per month to invest in raw materials."

"A young girl, one of our own citizens, studying at Munich, mailed a greenback to a stranded friend in Vienna and was heavily fined for breaking a regulation which the owner of half Ruhr industries manifestly treats with contempt."

"Cuno, seeking to halt further defection, asks a group of private bankers to take control of exchange. Fiscal confusion is worse confounded by labor's demand for a dollar wage basis."

"The Chinaman has nothing on Teuton finance when it comes to ways that are dark."

Without the Sense of Tomtits

"The people of Albany apparently hold the cancer record. Prudential Life statistics point to 163 cases in each 100,000 of population."

"At Norfolk, Virginia, the ratio is 48, and Detroit's percentage is almost as low."

"Differences of environment, water and racial stock possibly account for the inexplicable variation."

"Mortals have much to learn before they come to final grips with tumorous growths."

"Heart troubles, however, head the list of death causes. Too much fussing, fuming, racing and raging down there."

"Men folk, despite their boasted wisdom, haven't the sense of a tomtit. Every bird appreciates the need of adequate sleep and exercise, which along with plenty of fresh air and a selected diet alone ease blood pressure, speed digestion and keep one fit."

"French army experts trace many recent aviation catastrophes to constitutional flaws. They've built a tank in which the excess of atmosphere and temperature are artificially reproduced, taking a leaf out of our book. Nature didn't design all of us for high flying or most of them either."

"Tardily realizing an obvious truth, France determines upon rigorous physical training of pilots."

"Before aviators are licensed, they're subjected to the equivalent of pressures and ethers encountered in flight."

"Weak and apoplectic beings should keep their feet on the ground."

Working at the Wrong End

"The Commissioner-General of Immigration asks his department to rule that steamship companies must bear the expense of providing for detained aliens."

"Why don't they deal with the problem at its source, establish a Federal clearing house abroad, collect and exchange daily reports of passenger applications, check ticket sales, and so prevent the long and futile expense imposed upon intending citizens and settlers, besides eliminating complications that already provoke harsh and proper criticism from every Old-World Parliament?"

"Our doctors should be on the other side making examinations at points of departure . . ."

But at this juncture, a gypsy moon slyly laying eggs in the background, observes a boy instructed to "burn some of those darned caterpillars, and haul a stone and send an other precious larvae to the perdition."
